March 14, 2013

Your vote will help the UAB Supportive Care and Survivorship Clinical Program receive funding from

L

IVESTRONG

's Community Impact Project. UAB has applied for grant funding from LIVE STRONG for an artists-in-residence program for cancer patients. The program is competing with seven other hospitals, cancer centers and community organizations in an online vote on that ends at 5 p.m. Thursday, March 28, 2013.

The UAB Supportive Care and Survivorship Clinic is the only one of its type in a three-state area. More than 5,000 patients are treated in UAB cancer programs annually, and the program's focus is to provide an extra layer of support and care to cancer patients from diagnosis to survivorship. The LIVE STRON

grant

will support patients by giving them an outlet to express themselves through art (visual, performing and literary). The program has a longstanding commitment to arts in healing, and also has the infrastructure necessary to ensure this program's success. With the LIVE

STRONG

Foundation funding this program, it has the potential to support patients in a way that might not be possible otherwise.

Vote for the UAB program here.

LIVESTRONG works to empower the cancer community to address the unmet needs of cancer survivors through collaboration, knowledge-sharing and partnership.